Our house had damp block walls in our unfinished, musty smelling basement. We wanted to make a family room in the basement so we put Platon on the floor and outside walls before framing the room. The difference was amazing. It became the most comfortable room in the house! We measured the floor temperature one winter day. It was 64° in the unfinished part of the basement, 64° in the office where we had underpad and carpet right on the concrete and 69° in the family room where we had the Platon subfloor. The air temperature was 71° in all 3 areas. I highly recommend Platon for any floor over concrete.

We used Platon under laminate flooring when we remodelled our basement family room. The room actually feels cosier than when we had carpet on the concrete floor! We were especially happy to have a Platon floor recently when our hot water tank sprung a leak while we were away. The tank was in one part of the basement, the floor drain in another. The water ran under the Platon and did not get the laminate floor or furniture wet at all. It would have ruined the floor, area rugs and furnishings otherwise, and insurance doesn't cover leaks! After the tank was replaced, the water dried up with no smells whatsoever.

I'm a remodeller and I used Platon under OSB in my own 900 square foot basement. It's the best floor system I have ever seen. When I bring prospective clients over to check out my workmanship, they all comment on the fact that they wouldn't know they were in a basement – it feels like an upstairs room. I now earn extra money by installing Platon every time I do a floor over concrete. My clients are thrilled that the musty smells so common in basements are gone and that they never get cold feet with a Platon subfloor! I call it "The friendly floor"!
